Program Summary

The scope of nursing responsibilities has dramatically increased, making it essential for nursing professionals to keep current on legislation which affects nursing liability. This important seminar will address current nursing liability issues to help you minimize your risks. As a participant you will learn:

- How to identify the critical elements in charting and preventative measures in documentation
- How to deal with ethical issues such as living wills, withholding treatment, and death with dignity
- Current AIDS legislative developments and how to handle confidential information
- To find the liability insurance policy that is right for you
- What to do if you become involved in a malpractice case

Who Should Attend

This program will greatly benefit nurses, nursing administrators, medical professionals, attorneys and others who desire to keep abreast of current developments in nursing law.

Reference Manual

The faculty members have prepared a reference manual specifically to accompany their presentation of this seminar. It expands on the seminar topics and also serves as an easy-to-use resource for you after the seminar. Register for this important seminar and receive this valuable reference manual absolutely free.

Audiotapes

One of the major benefits of attending this seminar in person is being able to confer with the faculty and other program participants.
